

DECIDES ISSUES OF THE CAMPAIGN

STUDENTS OF LAWRENCE COL-LEGE FIGURE OUT POLITICAL DOPE.

EVERYTHING IS SETTLED

Class in Politics Has Its Own Ideas
About What Should Be Done
This Fall.

Appleton, Wis., Feb. 16.—According to the investigation made by the class in "Actual Politics" at Lawrence college, there are several elements that must be considered in the coming republican campaign by the members of the two factions of the republican party.

Heretofore the cry has been "What will the Norwegians do?" Yet the Norwegian population of the state was about 2.98 per cent in 1900 and the German (foreign born) 11.73 per cent. The politicians have been so anxious over the vote of the Norwegians that this element has received three times as many appointments as have the Germans. Then there are the Swedes, who do not work with the Norwegians, who have to be reckoned with, and no notice taken of the Polish vote, although the Polish population is 1.7 per cent as against 1.27 for the Swedes. It would seem that the showed manager would find it to the interest of his ticket to cultivate the German and Polish vote.

Another element that has heretofore been ignored is the county option vote. This vote has not been considered for the reason of its not being carefully organized. Nevertheless if the temperance element carried out its plans to vote on the question of saloons in every town and city in the state, it will give them a formidable organization of experienced political workers with one common purpose, that of county option.

A careful study of the temperance vote cast in 1900 and the male membership of various churches who are strongly in favor of county option, gives us a very conservative estimate, over 40,000 voters who care for county option much more than they do for tariff or other faction of the republican party. It has been stated by men who have figured up the number of signatures of voters who signed the county option petitions to the members of the last legislature, that the same was over 150,000, or about one half of the voters of the state.

Against this number is the some 8,700 saloonkeepers, an equal number of bartenders, and about 3,000 employees of the breweries and distilleries with other employees of the hotel and department stores, making a force of about 22,000 voters who care more for their business than they do for La Follette or Anti-La Follette. Both of these elements are well organized. The county option forces have a central headquarters in Milwaukee and several sub-headquarters in different parts of the state. It has several attorneys and lecturers who receive regular salaries. They are reinforced by the local church organizations, have free use of the church buildings and pulpits. They have already nearly perfected their skeleton organization of the state, having from one to ten workers in every one of the 2,300 precincts in the state. These workers are pledged to work for but one thing, the advancement of county option. It is said by those who are in position to know that they have ample funds for a state campaign as it costs them nothing for precinct work.

Opposed to this organization is the saloonkeepers' association to which each member contributes two dollars each three months, the Personal Liberty league, to which it is said each member pays $10 when he joins and the funds received from the brewery and distillery corporations, estimated at a total amount of $100,000 and liquor interests have their headquarters in Milwaukee also, and have several paid attorneys, lecturers and agents who devote their entire time to the work, besides local attorneys in the larger cities throughout the state. The attorneys and agents of the brewers are better politicians than the county option people by reason of their long experience, they manage to be represented or present at nearly every important political conference of both factions of the republican party and have succeeded in so shaping matters that their interests will be considered in the selection of candidates for governor by both factions of the republican party.

It would seem that the campaign managers of 1910 are bound to have plenty of trouble ahead of them, with the strong organized bodies within their party striving for interests directly opposed, regardless of the factional fight over Taft or La Follette. In some legislative districts the county option people will cut loose entirely from the factional candidates and run candidates of their own who will agree to abide by the choice of the people for senator and at the same time cast their vote for county option. This will upset the calculations of the leaders on both sides who have heretofore been more than anxious to consolidate the brewery forces in order to secure campaign contributions. On the other hand the brewery forces may be disappointed and run independent candidates. So with the brewers, the county option people, the Germans, Poles, Swedes and Norwegians, with an occasional Yankee to be considered, the life of the campaign manager will be "short and full of trouble."

AWFUL DEATH OF HENRY GOTSTEIN

KEROSENE EXPLOSION KILLS SON AND BURNS FATHER BADLY.

OCCURRED THIS MORNING

Henry Gotstein, Four Years Old, Dies in Hospital—Other Members of Family, Except Father, Escape Uninjured.

Monroe, Wis., Feb. 16.—Four year old Henry Gotstein is dead and his father, Henry Gotstein, is lying at the hospital in a serious condition, as the result of a kerosene explosion which occurred at the Gotstein home this morning about half past five o'clock. Other members of the two families living in the cottage, which is situated near the St. Paul depot, escaped unharmful but the interior of the house was completely gutted before the fire department could subdue the flames.

The accident was due to an unfortunate mistake on the part of the father. Early in the morning an older son started fire in both the kitchen range and the heating stove. Later, Mr. Gotstein, thinking that there was no fire in the heater, poured part of the contents of a kerosene can into the stove. An explosion immediately followed and the can was hurled across the room to a sanitary cot where the small son was sleeping. In the excitement incident to the hurried rush of the family to reach a place of safety, the little boy was forgotten for an instant but his father, seeing his terrible plight, rushed back and seizing the lad in his arms, carried him outside and extinguished the flames, after which he carried him to the hospital.

Every effort was made to alleviate the boy's suffering but he died in less than thirty minutes. His face was terribly burned while other portions of his body were charred almost beyond recognition. The father, who is at present in the hospital, was badly burned about the arms and legs while trying to save his son, but it is not thought that his injuries will prove fatal.

At the time of the explosion, there were two families living in the house, Mr. and Mrs. Gotstein and five children and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Zahorik and child. The house was owned by J. W. Howe. Mr. Gotstein is employed as a foreman in the E-Z Go-Cart company which recently moved to this city from Beloit.

SENATE TO REJECT POSTAL BANK BILL?

Root's Amendment to be Main Reason
—Sub-Committee Considers Conservative Bill.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—Unless Senator Root can be induced to withdraw or materially modify his amendment to the Postal Savings Bank bill requiring the investment of the postal deposits in United States bonds, that measure will probably be defeated by the senate. Friends of the bill practically admit that this is the situation and that a crisis is imminent.

All the administration bills providing for the conservation of the natural resources will be considered by the sub-committee of the senate committee on public lands to be composed of Senators Smoot, Clark, Dixon, Chamberlain and Hughes.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW WANTS RE-ELECTION

Doc Will be Formally Launched at Albany Tomorrow Evening—Prospects Brighter Than They Were.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 16.—It is expected that Senator Chauncey M. Depew's bid for re-election will be formally launched here tomorrow night, when the Senator will be the chief speaker at the annual dinner of the Albany County Republican Organization. Senator Depew only recently concluded that he wanted to return to the senate, while the Republican party in this state has not yet decided whether it will permit him to do so. The prospects for his success, however, appear somewhat brighter than they did a while back. Timothy L. Woodruff, who has had senatorial aspirations for a long time, has announced that he will keep out of Depew's way and has accepted an invitation to speak in the Senator's behalf at the dinner tomorrow night. Representative J. Stuart Bassett, another man who has been willing to go to the senate for a long time, has also assured Senator Depew that he will keep out of the race.

Senator Depew and his friends could plan more accurately if they knew what Colonel Roosevelt intends to do when he gets back from Africa. Some of the former President's friends here are quite certain he will desire to go to the senate. "While the Republicans are trying to decide whether they shall retain the services of Mr. Depew, the Democrats are expressing the hope of being able to capture the legislature and elect a Democratic senator."

WHITMAN COLLEGE SEMI-CENTENNIAL

Walla Walla, Wash., Institution Celebrates Jubilee and 100th Anniversary of Birth of its Founder.

Walla Walla, Wash., Feb. 16.—An interesting program of exercises was carried out at Whitman College today in celebration of the semi-centennial of the college and the centennial anniversary of the birth of its founder, Cushing Ellis. The jubilee was made the occasion for a large gathering of former students from all sections of the Northwest, together with public officials, visiting educators, churchmen and other friends of the institution. Addresses were delivered by a number of prominent speakers, who highly praised the work of the college in the past and present, and predicted a bright future for it.

Cushing Ellis, who founded the college in memory of Dr. Marcus Whitman, a man whose deeds he was born one hundred years ago today in the town of Whitman, Mass. He was ordained a Congregational minister in 1837, and soon afterward he and his wife offered themselves as missionaries to the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions and were appointed to Oregon. They arrived at Walla Walla in August, 1838, having made most of the journey from Missouri on horseback. For ten years they served among the Spokane Indians. Then they moved to the Willamette valley, where Dr. Ellis laid the foundation for Willamette University at Salem. He was also the first teacher in what was afterward Pacific University at Forest Grove, Oregon, and taught school in other places until 1860, when he returned to Walla Walla and founded Whitman College. He gave to the college $10,000 of his own money and spent a year in the East working in his behalf. In 1888 he retired from active work and went to reside in Tacoma, where his death occurred on his eighty-fourth birthday, Feb. 16, 1893.

Whitman College prospered from the start and its development was greatly aided by liberal benefactions from Dr. D. K. Pearson and others. The institution occupies more than a dozen buildings and a campus of the city. The standards maintained are high, the Carnegie Foundation ranking the college with sixteen entrance requirements the same as Harvard and other large Eastern universities. At present the college has upwards of 600 students divided among the college of liberal arts, the school of music and the preparatory department. The number of students continues to increase each year, notwithstanding the fact that the tuition fees are the highest charged at any college or university west of the Rocky Mountains.

"MARSE HENRY" NOW SEVENTY YEARS OLD

Veteran Editor of the Louisville
Courier Journal is Celebrating
His Anniversary Today.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 16.—Henry Watterson, the veteran editor of the Courier Journal and often referred to as the foremost journalist of the South, celebrated the seventieth anniversary of his birth today and was the recipient of many congratulations. Watterson's herculean and failing body have combined to cause the veteran editor to relinquish active work almost wholly during the past year, but his interest in public affairs is as active and his pen as ready, when he chooses to use it, as in the stirring days of his youth when he was editor of the saucy "Chattanooga Rebel."

Mr. Watterson was born in the storm centre of national politics, at Washington, February 16, 1840. In consequence of defective eyesight, which has always troubled him, he was sent but little to the public schools, but received much careful education at home. At the commencement of the war he enlisted in the Confederate army and became chief of scouts for Gen. Joseph E. Johnston. At the end of the war he made his way practically penniless to Louisville, where a few years later he joined W. D. Haldeman in the newspaper enterprise which made fame and fortune for both of them.

Mr. Watterson became active in politics in 1872, and between that year and 1892 no Democratic platform was written without his aid and counsel. He presided over the convention that nominated Tilden, and was prominent as a leader and platformer which nominated William J. Bryan upon a free silver platform, and called forth from Mr. Watterson, then in Switzerland, the famous telegram, "no compromise with dishonor," a message that confirmed W. S. Haldeman, owner of the Courier Journal, in his determination to oppose Mr. Bryan.

WILL GOV. DAVIDSON SEEK RENOMINATION?

Editorial in Stoughton Paper Urging Him to Do So Said to Have Had His Sanction.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 16.—What is regarded by many of the republican leaders in the state as the first public move in the interests of the candidacy of Governor James O. Davidson for a renomination on the republican ticket for governor has been taken in an editorial which appeared in an issue of the Stoughton Courier-Club, urging his renomination. The editors of the Stoughton Courier-Club are good friends of Governor Davidson and it is declared that they never would have published the editorial without being certain it would be pleasing to Governor Davidson and his close political advisers. The editorial reviews the gubernatorial situation in the state and then announces the fitness of Governor Davidson for another term and the belief of the paper that he will be renominated.

It can be said that the managers of the other gubernatorial candidacy campaigns consider the editorial as practically announcing that Governor Davidson will be in the field for renomination.

CHANGES SOUGHT IN PRESENT LAWS ON IMMIGRATION

IMMIGRATION COMMISSIONER RECOMMENDS PASSAGE OF NEW LAW.

WEAK POINTS ARE FOUND

Harsh Penalties for Violation of Laws Asked For—Stricter Regulations Desired.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Not further restriction but merely to make possible such restriction as the existing law intends but has not accomplished, is the object of a proposed new immigration law recommended by Daniel J. Keefe, the commissioner general of immigration, in his annual report for the fiscal year 1909. It is proposed to accomplish this by codifying, arranging in logical sequence and strengthening at their weak points all existing laws on the general subject of immigration and Chinese exclusion.

Some of the principal suggestions are: So defining the term "alien" as to leave no doubt that it includes all persons not citizens; extending the contract labor provisions to forbid and penalize the inducement of immigration by false as well as genuine promises of employment, penalizing an attempt to import foreign laborers, and permitting the importation of alien skilled laborers if labor of like kind unemployed can not be found here only if the consent of the secretary of commerce and labor is obtained in advance; increasing the fine against steamship companies for taking on board dangerously diseased aliens from $100 to $200.

Mr. Keefe believes the time is ripe for the adoption of even stricter measures and suggests that a proposal worthy of careful thought is that all male aliens between 16 and 50 be required to pass a physical examination equal to that observed for army recruits.

Touching the "white slave" traffic the report sets out that an "special investigation conducted throughout the country and the general experience of the year, make it apparent that an enormous business is done in importing and distributing foreign women for immoral purposes, including the seduction and distribution of alien women and girls who enter regularly, and also to some extent of American women and girls. The federal officers have not discovered positive evidence of the existence of a syndicate for these nefarious purposes, but there is among those who conduct the business a certain esprit de corps, and there are in several cities clubs and headquarters where they congregate." In some cities, it is declared, the traffic is connected with local political conditions and some of the municipal authorities are implicated or otherwise helpless to assist in eradicating the evil. The federal government's powers, it is stated, are so limited as to make it essential if any marked progress is to be expected that the states and cities shall awaken to the seriousness of the situation and exercise their undoubted authority to put down the evil.

During the year there was a marked increase in deportations as a result of the campaign against the traffic. The provisions on this subject in the bill submitted by Mr. Keefe to carry out his recommendations are in principle the same as in the bill which already has passed the house except that they do not go so far in the features affecting interstate regulation of the practice.

Gratification is expressed as a result of the "experiment" in immigration law, as affecting the Japanese, controlled by law, proclamations and regulations following the anti-Japanese agitation in California several years ago.

There has been a material reduction in both the number of Japanese admitted and deported. In 1908, 9,544 Japanese were admitted to continental United States and 8,694 to Hawaii, while for 1909, the corresponding figures are 2,432 and 1,493. The number admitted to the mainland and Hawaii was only about 25 per cent and 17 per cent, respectively, of the number for 1908.

Contrary to the general impression Chinese admitted to the United States have increased during the past four years and Mr. Keefe is pessimistic regarding the operation of the law. He concludes that the system of exclusion and expulsion afforded by it is but ill adapted for either purpose. He says:

"Despite all that is said and all that is done, the bureau is always confident at the close of any year that many Chinese of the excluded classes have evaded the border officers, have over-vigilant they may have been, smuggled themselves on board steamships, or have by fraud and perjury managed to land in an apparently regular manner. There are doubtless now in this country at least as many Chinese not entitled to residence here as of the lawfully resident class, and they have entered in every way that can be imagined."

It is urged that the exclusion laws be merged into the general immigration law, so that the administrative process of expulsion (therein provided may be used.

There are also a number of other recommendations which the Commissioner says may be considered revolutionary, but are regarded as necessary if the law is to be effective and satisfactory.

During 1909, 6,393 Chinese were regularly admitted against 4,524 in 1908, 3,255 in 1907, and 2,732 in 1906. The worst feature the Commissioner says is that the increase is almost confined to classes the numbers of which are or soon become laborers and whose residence here violates the spirit of the law.

Immigration, which during 1909, fell off from the two previous years, the commissioner says, is re-assuming normal conditions.

EAU CLAIRE WON FOR COMMISSION

DESPITE PLEA AND WARNINGS OF O. A. OESTREICH.

JANESVILLE NO CRITERION

Of What's What in City Government, According to Speakers Who Broke Up Anti-Mass Meeting.

By a majority of nearly 900 votes the city of Eau Claire yesterday decided to adopt the commission form of government and it now comes under the spotlight as the first municipality in Wisconsin to prove itself, in this particular, progressive and unafraid.

The dispatches sent out last evening tell of a riotous demonstration at a mass meeting held at the Grand opera house Monday evening, when champions of the commission plan took the stage and answered the arguments and assertions made by Attorney O. A. Oestreich of Janesville who had been summoned to Eau Claire by union labor to "put down the rebellion."

Scarcely less over the account of the meeting appearing in yesterday's issue of the Eau Claire Leader, as Haskinura Togo would say, "display" as follows:

JANESVILLE, ATTORNEY INVITES CRITICISM AND BRINGS DOWN SOMETHING OF AN AVALANCHE.

AFFIRMING STANDPOINT AS A LAWYER HE IS PROMPTLY ANSWERED ON THE POINTS OF LAW.

"No more dramatic public meeting has been held in Eau Claire than the one that last night tore up the opera house," is the opening announcement, and the article then goes on to chronicle this history in the making:

Mr. Oestreich, the Janesville attorney, having invited criticism, and challenged an answer that came like thunder from the great crowd assembled. It was clear for "Wilcox!" "Wilcox!" instant and prolonged.

"Then things moved rapidly. It was a glorious set-to, and near its end, Chairman David Douglas, in the midst of the storm, stood gesticulating and waving for peace; he finally said: 'It's 11 o'clock!'"

"Then let's think to our absent brothers, Dave," was the prompt reply of the Eau Claire champion for a better Eau Claire, as he raised his glass of water.

In the storm that was sweeping over the audience few heard the pleasant, it was the Elias toast.

Roy Porter Wilcox had finished. In thirty-five minutes he had also finished Mr. O. A. Oestreich's two hour and fifteen minute speech, made incidentally against the Wisconsin law, but primarily against the whole commission idea.

The house fairly rose to Wilcox's argument and appeal.

Mr. Douglas exclaimed, "Let's be courteous to the gentleman from Janesville, and afford him time to answer."

But the house couldn't wait and went home rejoicing. While the eloquent Janesville attorney had been tearing the Wisconsin law to tatters—his own satisfaction—and showing that he was really against the entire commission plan, he seemed to have a part of the house with him. When interrupted by Attorney John H. Fleming, on a question that practically challenged an assertion, he answered in a way to open up the entire matter a little for Mr. Wilcox.

Today, whether commission wins over common council or not, something has been accomplished. The city is awake.

Mr. Wilcox in closing (after answering point after point made by Mr. Oestreich) said the argument made, had been one of do-nothing, or standing still, or being afraid to go ahead, or being cowardly. This, he said, might do for peaceful, suburban Janesville, but he hoped not for Eau Claire.

Here is about where the house again went wild. One of the best points made by the Eau Claire man was over publication of "proceedings," etc., brought out by Mr. Fleming. It was proven conclusively that the new plan does provide for more publication of everything than does our present city charter. The pamphlet printing, the summary statement of expenses, the monthly trial balances were all in addition to what is now required.

Further, the new plan requires every motion reduced to writing as it does the vote.

Mr. Oestreich was answered by the school commission and county supervisors. On technicalities, and theoretical and academic discussions were also answered, and until reminded of the time—the rest of Mr. Wilcox's speech was devoted to conditions, not theories, as they exist in Eau Claire.

Mr. Oestreich says they cleaned the rascals out in Janesville by having lawsuits. Well, who wants to do that in Eau Claire? But talking of recalls, we can recall a mayor and twenty aldermen tomorrow.

On coming on the stage Mr. Wilcox said: "Mr. Chairman, I don't want to butt in on anybody's meeting, but if my fellow citizens want to hear me, I could tell you a few things my Janesville friend failed to tell you, refer to some he told only in part, and call attention to some of his misstatements."

There was no doubt about the answer, and hardly a man left the big audience.

EDMUND ROSTAND.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR IN FRANCE. Latest Picture of Edmund Rostand.

Paris, France.—The production of "Chanticleer" has exceeded even the highest expectations of an expectant France. Edmund Rostand has again proven that he stands supreme as the author of comedy in France, if not in the world. In "Chanticleer" not a human being is to be seen upon the stage during the entire play. The scene is laid in the barnyard and every bird and petcock, selected from the best talent of France, appears in the role of some barnyard fowl.

COL. WILLIAM CAMP.

CHIVALROUS, high-minded, impulsive, generous, courteous, courageous, loyal, a believer in good fellowship, a lover of home, magnanimous to enemies, true to friends, is a reputation that any man may well envy.

No man better exemplifies this description than Col. William Camp, whose testimonial is given below. His unique figure and charming personality is well known in the streets of the capital city of the United States. His word is as good as his bond. His frankness and truthfulness no one has ever questioned that knew him.

L. R. GLAVIS IS ANGERED

BALLINGER'S ACCUSER DENOUNCES LETTER INCIDENT AS A "FRAME-UP"

DECLARES SECRETARY UNFIT

Hot Cross-Examination Increases Interest in Investigation Before Congressional Committee—Is Match for Lawyers.

Washington, Feb. 10.—That of a total of 900 claims in Alaska 40 were clear listed by the government through Secretary Ballinger and 33 of those are clear listed were claims in the Cunningham coal land grants, was the most important evidence offered by Louis R. Glavis in his testimony before the joint investigating committee. The witness made this statement in an effort to demonstrate how deeply interested the secretary is in the success of the Cunningham claims, before the United States land office.

At all points Glavis adhered to his former testimony regarding the unfairness for offices of both Secretary Ballinger and Assistant Secretary Pierce. The committee was in executive session 40 minutes discussing the admissibility at this time of a report from Seattle giving the details of the alleged discovery among Glavis' effects of 21 letters which had been missing from the official files of the land office there. No decision was announced.

Certain original letters, which it is claimed Glavis did not turn over to his successor when he was removed from the service, were found recently in a box which he left in the grand jury room at Seattle. This feature of the cross-examination angered the witness and he bitterly denounced what he termed a "frame-up" on the part of federal officials who were working in favor of their superiors. He asserted repeatedly on the stand "that Mr. Ballinger is unfit for the office he holds, is unfaithful to the trust, and not loyal to the interests of the people."

Look into Alleged "Frame-Up." To ascertain whether or not Glavis was the victim of a "frame-up" in connection with the finding of various missing official papers, Attorney Verrees requested that subpoena issue forthwith for A. Christensen, Glavis' successor, and G. W. O'Neill of Seattle.

Glavis fences with the attorneys skillfully and apparently is a match for all of them. He parries their questions and when directed to answer "Yes" or "No" he always stands upon the right that has been accorded him, to follow this up with an explanation which may run on for five minutes or more, and in the course of which he usually taken advantage of the opportunity to say that he was thus convinced "that Mr. Ballinger is unfit for the office he holds, is unfaithful to his trust, and not loyal to the interests of the people."

Members of the committee, among whom are many well-known lawyers, declare that rarely in their experience have they seen a more clever witness than Glavis. During most of the time the dissembled field agent is answering or arguing with Mr. Verrees Ballinger's counsel, Mr. Brandeis sits by with a broad grin on his face, apparently confident that his witness needs no assistance from him.

NEW YORK SENATOR INTRODUCES RESOLUTION FOR SWEEPING INQUIRY.

BRIDGE TRUST IS INVOLVED

Congress Admits American Company Deposited Cash to Be Used with Members of Assembly and for Republican Organization.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 10.—How the American Bridge Company set aside money with which to purchase legislation and also the defeat of legislation in the New York general assembly was coolly recited by Senator Conger in the Albany bribery investigation.

A resolution introduced in the senate by Senator J. M. Watson provides for the appointment of a joint committee of three senators and five assemblymen with practically unlimited powers to conduct the inquiry. The session came at the close of the direct examination of Senator Conger, when Senator Newcomb, in accordance with notice previously given, arose with a list of questions in his hand to ask the witness.

Try to Keep Out Questions.

For over an hour he was prevented from putting his questions through the wrangling of senators who objected to the line of inquiry they knew he was about to make. But finally Chairman Davis decided that Newcomb had a right to ask the questions.

The first question put to Conger by Senator Newcomb was whether he knew that a corruption fund for the purpose of influencing legislation in the state of New York had been raised in 1902? He said he did. He was then asked who had the handling of the money? He answered the Otton Bridge Company. He was next asked whether a similar fund had been expended for the same purpose in 1902. His answer was:

"There was a contribution to the state chairman of the Republican organization."

$7,500 Was Contributed.

The chairman of the Republican organization in 1902 was George W. Dunn of Birmingham. Senator Conger was not asked to state the amount of the contribution made to State Chairman Dunn, but information obtained later was that it was $7,500. The revelation that Chairman Dunn had received contributions from the bridge interests created a profound sensation in the chamber.

At the close of Senator Newcomb's questioning of Conger he gave notice that at the end of the inquiry by the senate into the Albany bribery charges he would move to have the authority of the committee of the whole extended so as to permit of a thorough investigation of the use made of the funds raised by the bridge trust to influence legislation in the years 1902 and 1903.

SAYS NO TAMPERING OF TUBES.

Commander of Torpedo Boat Denies Explosion Due to Foul Play.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 10.—Lieut. Friedrich, who is in command of the United States torpedo boat destroyer Hopkins, put an end to the rumors that Monday's explosion aboard the vessel was due to foul play by stating that it was absolutely impossible that there could have been any tampering with the boiler tubes by mercenaries. While unwilling to try to explain the cause of the accident because of the fact that the matter is now under investigation by a naval board of inquiry, Friedrich was not disposed to shift from his shoulders any of the burden of responsibility.

The body of R. K. Taylor, the fireman who died of injuries received in Monday's accident, will probably be shipped to Perry, la., for burial. His father, Robert C. Taylor, lives there.

All the other men who were injured are reported in improved condition.

Taft, Wickersham and Others Have Conference on Corporation Law.

Washington, Feb. 10.—President Taft, Attorney General Wickersham, Acting Secretary of the Treasury Norton and Royal Cabel, commissioner of Internal revenue had a long conference at the White House on the publicity clause of the corporation tax law. It was practically decided that pending the decision of the supreme court on constitutionality of the law, there will be no movement introduced in the direction of restricting the publicity which the law enforces with regard to the reports made by corporations under the act. It is even doubtful if any change will be made in the law in this respect if it is declared constitutional by the supreme court.

NICARAGUAN REBELS ARE FORCED TO RETREAT

President Madrid's Troops Recapture Matagalpa After Bombarding City Several Days.

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 10.—Matagalpa is again in the possession of President Madrid's forces after the insurgents under the leadership of Gen. Chamorro, had occupied the city since February 10.

The bombardment of the city, which was begun Sunday night after notification had been given to the noncombatants to withdraw, was abandoned for some hours, and begun again. The government forces had heavy guns on the hills, but the insurgents were without means to reply at long range. Chamorro therefore deemed it advisable to retreat, and under cover of darkness evacuated Matagalpa.

Chamorro did not escape any too soon, as he was nearly surrounded by the government forces, which had been brought up as quickly as the condition of the country would permit.

It is reported here that Gen. Chamorro has broken away from Gen. Estrada and proclaimed himself president. Overtures have been made to President Madrid by Chamorro through the medium of the American consular agent at Matagalpa, W. H. de Savigny, for the re-establishment of peace.

Spreckels.

WHAT WILL RESULT?
Many eastern newspapers, particularly the Christian Science Monitor, see great good to come from the naval inquiry and reformation of this important department of the Government. They believe that not only are the merits of the Newberry and Meyer systems of navy reorganization involved in the inquiry now under way before the house naval committee, but consideration is again directed to the question whether there was a proper assumption of power on the part of the president in his order of Nov. 26, the effect of which was to give the legislative department of the government access only to such information from executive departments as may be sanctioned by the members of the cabinet. This question is revived by the course of Admiral Capps and Paymaster General Rogers in having disagreed with the secretary of the navy in their statements before the committee. It is the opinion in some quarters that they shot the Meyer plan full of holes. Have they by this action destroyed their usefulness to the head of the department? If they have given any offense, it was by a violation of the same order whereof the enforcement brought about the dismissal of Pinchot from the forestry service. Messrs. Capps and Rogers advocated the Newberry plan of navy yard administration as against that of the present secretary.

It is stated "advisedly but not on executive authority" that no penalty will attach to their utterances. The fullness and frankness of their testimony were welcome to the members of the committee. Congress wants its information from the departments undiluted; it has a deep feeling that it is entitled to such information as representative of the people. Indisposition further to oppose this feeling is understood to be the reason for passing over the comment of the two naval witnesses to whom reference has been made.

Secretary Meyer's idea of navy reorganization may be regarded as an experiment so far, and its value is not wholly determined; he may be entitled to further opportunity to show its merits. The balance seems to turn in favor of the Newberry plan, however. It is true, as Secretary Meyer says, that the officers should be familiar with the machinery of their vessels, but their business is to fight, and that occupation will take all their time and attention during a period of war. They should have others on whom they could depend to look after the machinery. These men the staff can supply from its trained corps. The officers would be out of place in repair shops in time of war. During days of peace, when they are on shore duty in machine shops they should serve under orders of those who are their superiors there. This opinion is widely held outside of certain naval circles. Secretary Meyer will probably find it difficult to secure the acceptance of a contrary view.

FUTURE PROSPECTS
From what one can read there are many politicians who firmly believe that the next House of Representatives will be either democratic or so strongly anti-administration that the real work of the republican party will be seriously handicapped. Some of these writers would have us believe that it is all due to Cannon. They feel the insurgent members with food to continue their fight against the party they claim to represent and encourage them in their endeavors to bring about an open rupture in the ranks of the G. O. P. In this connection it is interesting to note what the Chicago Inter Ocean has to say on the subject of the makeup of the next lower house of congress:

"Are the republicans sure of the next House of Representatives? Have the sanguine hopes of the democrats that the history of many political 'off years' will repeat itself to their advantage and that they will secure the twenty-five seats needed to give them control any reasonable basis?"

"These questions are certainly among the most pertinent that can be asked just at this time. Unfortunately they are as difficult as pertinent. However, a resume of the situation and a gathering of any stray hints afforded by circumstances are worth while, under the circumstances."

"The recent election of Clement Cabell Dickinson, democrat, in the Sixth Missouri district, by a democratic majority larger by 1,628 than that returned at the last election for the late Mr. Do Armmond, one of the most distinguished democrats, has suggested such a resume to the New York Sun.

"Having in mind the increase in the democratic vote in this particular district, it proceeds to show, on the basis of the last congressional returns, how many republican and democratic seats could be lost by an even smaller shifting of sentiment—by a change, say, of 500 or 1,000 votes.

"There are twenty districts," the Sun says, "in which republicans hold their seats in the present house by less than 1,000 majority or plurality, and there are nine democrats similarly situated. There are eleven republicans who hold their seats in the present house by majorities or pluralities greater than 1,000 but less than 2,000, and fifteen democrats are in the same situation." It continues:

"All told, then, twenty-nine seats are held by members with less than 1,000 majority and twenty-six more with less than 2,000 majority. It would appear, therefore, from the statistics that twenty republicans are in danger of defeat next fall by a change of 500 votes, and nine democrats; and that fifteen democrats and eleven republicans are in danger of losing their seats by a change of 1,000 votes."

"It should be remembered in this connection that the fact that this is an 'off year' and the year of a new tariff bill will count more or less against the party in power—if there is anything in past experience. So the democratic position is even better than the figures indicate."

"However, the indications at this time point rather to a crippling of the republican strength than to its reduction to a minority position. However, a republican smash-up is not by any means impossible. We should say, in fact, that an untoward turn in the business world might easily give the Sixty-second congress to the democrats. Certainly, a continuation of the present feud between the regulars and insurgents would put the republican majority in the house in the gravest jeopardy."

An Exchange suggests that the "straw vote" of the editors of republican and independent newspapers of the west produces a whole stack of opposition to the selection of Mr. Cannon as speaker of the next House of Representatives. Mr. Cannon, who is himself a one-time farmer, will no doubt know how much dependence to put on these straws as a means for finding out how the political wind blows.

It is suggested that one way to accomplish the creation of an American Merchant marine is by reducing the price of construction of the vessels, making them cost no more than they do on the Clyde, for instance. This would encourage Americans to build and own vessels just as they did years ago when the Stars and Stripes flew on every sea in the days of the clipper ships. There was no ship subsidy in those days either.

Everybody appreciates the suggestion of the sun that it appear a little longer each day from now on. Perhaps many do not know it also gets out of bed much earlier now than it used to.

Football has not killed anybody this year, that is, not thus far, although there are several young college athletes that will be missing when the count is made next fall.

As far as can be learned these high prices of food must all be blamed to the notions of the delivery boy. No one else seems able to be pointed to as the direct cause.

Graft hunters have begun their invasion of Ohio and promise to turn up some big game before they get through with the excursion.

Women are going back to the styles of 1850, but not to the price tags of those days by any means. The prices will keep just as high.

Talent of Success.
The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, without a thought of fame. If it comes at all, it will come because it is deserved, not because it is sought after. It is very ill-desired and troublesome ambition which cares so much about fame, about what the world says of us, as to be always looking in the faces of others for approval, to be always anxious about the effect of what we do or say, to be always shouting to hear the echoes of our own voices.

THE POET PHILOSOPHER

"I'll take a gun," the sad man said, "and pour some shot in my tired head, and then curl up and die; this weary life upon me EXPRESSIVE both; I'm tired of BOTH WAYS primes and cushion balls, who need to live on pie. The flour, the hay, the bread, the meat, and everything a man must eat, would break a plowshare; my salary's a nice amount, but when I pay my grub account, you see me busted flat. And so, my dear and precious wife, the joy and sunshine of my life, I think it's up to me, to take the shotgun from the shelf and with it go and hang myself, and be from trouble free." The wife replied: "My dear, old hub! You noble, handsome, saved-off dub! You're talking through your hat; it's true the price of bread and meats, and cabbage and beans and beets, would break a plowshare; but if you and the greedy grind, and leave your little wife behind, with grief I'll soon be gray; the coffin trust will seek this spot, and levy on the house and lot, and garnish my pay. It's hard to do without your pie, but then it costs so much to die, you can't afford it yet; to slumber in a graveyard ditch is something for the idle rich—the poor must live and sweat!"

Heart to Heart Talks.
By EDWIN A. NYE.

A SUCCESS STORY.
It is a long cry from a redskin's tope to membership in the United States senate.

Of the many "success" stories now current this one about Senator Charles H. Curtis is surely worth the retelling.

When the civil war broke out Curtis was a year-old Indian papoose tied to a board and slanted up against the center pole of a wigwam of the Kaw tribe.

His mother was a squaw of the Kaws and his father a white man.

The mother died when Curtis was three years old. The boy lived with his Grandfather Curtis at Topeka.

Used to the free, open spaces, the Indian youth was like a caged animal. He played truant at every chance. He ran away from his books and began selling newspapers and shining shoes for a livelihood.

Young Curtis was accustomed to loaf about a certain racing stable, where he came to be a jockey. He was a daring rider and won many races.

One day Curtis was the mount of a vicious horse that flew the track and threw his rider against a high board fence. That came near ending the boy's life. It ended his racing career.

Afterward he became a hack driver and at the same time got an appetite for an education.

In this respect Curtis was like that other brilliant senator, Thurston of Nebraska, who got his education while driving an Omaha hack.

Studying law when he was not collecting fares, Curtis was admitted to the bar when he was only twenty-two. At twenty-four he was county prosecutor.

He went after criminals as the Kaws used to go after the Chippewas.

Without he read everything worth while, and he is today an unusually well educated man.

He ran for congress and failed the first time. His next campaign was successful, and his whirlwind character is a tradition to this day.

Curtis is a strong partisan, but a brilliant man, and has devoted faithful efforts toward the betterment of his mother's people. The much abused and long abused Indian has an eloquent champion in Curtis.

Young man—
Don't say you have no chance. What chance had the orphan half breed who at fifteen knew only the uncouth speech of an Indian dialect?

BRANDEIS, COUNSEL FOR GLAVIS IN THE BALLINGER-PINCHOT INQUIRY.

Washington, D. C.—An unusual array of legal talent is being brought to bear on the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation. Not only are the principals directly represented, but also is L. R. Glavis, who has proven one of the principal witnesses. Glavis has retained Frank J. Brandeis as counsel, and opposed to him is John J. Vertrees of Tennessee, whom Ballinger summoned to defend him at the congressional investigation.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. RANDALL

Were Held at Oak Hill Chapel This Morning—The General and Capt. Craigie Depart for Cheyenne Tonight.

Major General George M. Randall (retired) of the U. S. army, and Captain Wallace Craigie of the Ninth U. S. cavalry, stationed at Cheyenne, Wyoming, arrived here from Chicago last evening with the remains of the late Mrs. Randall, who died on Friday, February 11, at the age of fifty-eight years. George D. Rainsford of Chicago, an old friend of the general, who came from New York City, and Mrs. Willard Johnson of Milwaukee, a niece, were among the mourners present at the funeral services which were conducted by Rev. John McKimney at the Oak Hill cemetery chapel at ten o'clock this morning. Interment was made in the Randall family lot. The deceased was a daughter of the late Colonel Black who was for some years superintendent of the West Point military academy and is well remembered here, having accompanied the general on his visit to Janesville a few years ago.

General Randall, who passed his sixty-ninth birthday not long ago, enlisted for service in the Civil war and left Janesville in 1861. At that time he was nineteen years of age. He served throughout the war and was subsequently identified with Gen. Crook's long campaign against Geronimo, the character of the campaign, the early days of the campaign against the Sioux, the campaign of 1874-75, and the later Sioux campaign of 1889-90-91. He was in charge of the first troops sent to Alaska and was retired not long after his return from the campaign in the Philippines.

He has been living in Cheyenne since his retirement and will take his departure for that city this evening.

MEMBERS OF LOANI BAND ENJOYED FINE PROGRAM

"Italy and the Home of the Walden-ees" Was the Subject Discussed Last Evening.

Over one hundred members of the Loani band assembled at the Congregational church parlors last evening for the monthly supper and discussion of missionary topics. The supper was prepared under the direction of the Misses Gertrude Van Boven and Laura Westlake and the discussion of "Italy and the Home of the Walden-ees" was led by Miss Gertrude Zehnig. The organization hopes to make arrangements at the March meeting to pay half of its annual pledge of $300 and members are requested to act accordingly.

The Unemployed.

The legislation of the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth centuries abounds in bills concerning the unemployed. In the reign of Edward VI. several laws were passed against "idlers" who also gave a very interesting account of the general who were in the reign of Henry VIII, the kingdom was infested with "rogues," "vagabonds" and "idle persons," and it is said that during Henry's reign more than 70,000 of this unfortunate class were hanged.

Wonders of Mechanism.

A German shoemaker spent 15 years of his leisure moments in constructing a clock of the grandfather shape, nearly six feet high, made entirely of straw. The wheels, pointers, case and every detail are exclusively of straw. The most remarkable fact is that it is reported to keep perfect time, though the durability of this strange piece of mechanism is a matter of doubt.

CHANGES SOUGHT
IN PRESENT LAWS
ON IMMIGRATION

mal proportions. The months of January to June, 1909, however, show increases over the same months of 1908 which is attributed to the fact that those interested in the immigration of the United States have traded upon and magnified the fact that the immigration of the United States is not all reasonable limits, and the improvement in industrial conditions in encourage immigration.

As to occupations, 174,800 unskilled laborers of the immigrant class entered and 118,936 of the emigrant class departed. Of the 174,800 immigrants, 10,788 entered the United States during the year, 88,293 were under 14, and 3,517 were 45 or over; of those over 14 years of age 101,493 could neither read nor write, an increase in the ratio of illiteracy to 29 per cent, as against 26 per cent in 1908. For various reasons, 10,411 aliens were deported.

Reference is made again to the interesting and important economic problem arising from the fact that a very large proportion of immigrants is coming from southern and eastern Europe, those countries furnishing about 67 per cent of the immigrants. The continuance of this preponderance is declared to be a question concerning every patriotic citizen, for it is stated there can be little homogeneity between people of that section and the real American.

A distribution of more than 5,000 persons was affected during the 15 months ended June, 1909, through the operations of the division of information, of whom 2,555 were sent to agricultural communities. The division is directing its efforts toward a practical solution of the problem of the security of farm help.

Particular care has been taken to direct no man to work where they might be used to replace labor already employed. The field of activity comprised forty states and one territory.

There were issued during the year 37,337 certificates of naturalization, an excess of 11,849 over the preceding year. The four states in which the principal work of naturalization was transacted being New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Massachusetts.

J.M. BOSTWICK & SONS.

FEBRUARY IS BARGAIN MONTH

In the ready-to-wear department. It's the month when low prices on all winter garments have the center of the stage. THE GREAT BARGAINS IN CLOAKS, SUITS AND DRESSES ARE HERE. It is for you to find them out.

Children's Cloaks

Now IS the time to buy them. The changes in styles are not so marked from year to year. We fit children of all ages and show a fine assortment. All the wanted colors. Bring in the babies, bring in the children, bring in the girls from 12 to 18 and take advantage of the TREMENDOUS BARGAINS that await you. Mothers and fathers cannot afford to ignore such a chance to save money.

Women's and Misses Coats

Customers grow enthusiastic over the Bargains. You will too, when you learn the prices at which good garments are going. All we ask is a chance to show them. Not only are the $5.00 and $3.00 Coats the greatest ever for such figures, but the garments we offer at $10.00 to $15.00 are being eagerly picked up.

In Suits and Dresses

If you have a want we can supply it. A good range of sizes and colors. Although this is supposed to be one of the quietest months in the year, we are keeping a liberal force busy continually in our alteration department.

The Furs

Only yesterday an agent told us that the prices on furs next fall would be higher than the average person dreamed of. There is every advantage in buying furs now. We show many good things.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"Don't send my boy where your girl can't go. And say, 'There's no danger for boys, you know, because they all have their wild oats to sow.' There's no more excuse for my boy to be low, than your girl. Then please don't tell him so."

"Don't send my boy where your girl can't go. For a boy's sin or a girl's sin is sin, you know. And my lady's hands are as clean and white. And his heart is as pure as your girl's tonight."

—Anonymous.

THERE is one great moral reform that I hope the twentieth century will see at least started, and that is the abolishment of a dual standard of morality for the two sexes.

Not long ago I wrote an article on the old-fashioned mother and the wisdom of listening to some of her old-fashioned advice. Shortly afterward, one of this sisterhood of mothers wrote to me to say that she thought that some of the things in this article applied to her son, but that it had rolled from his shoulders like water off a duck's back, because he was sure it was meant only for girls.

It wasn't meant only for girls by any means. On the whole, I think that most young men need a conservative mother's advice much more than their sisters.

But you'd need Digby's lantern to find the man who would admit that.

A woman can't possibly understand the peculiar temptations a man has, or the peculiar standards he lives by, think most boys. Of course, they expect their sisters to be refined and careful and straight. The very thought of anything else makes their blood boil. But as for themselves—that's different. They're men.

I am an ardent suffragist, but I would rather see women get their rights in this matter than at the polls. I would rather see the thing, when a man's sin and a woman's sin would be regarded in just the same light, than the time when women will have free access to the ballot box.

I realize, of course, that women are their own worst enemies in this thing. It is a sad fact that a man will forgive an erring woman for more readily than her sisters will. It is they who harshly condemn the woman who "loved not wisely, but too well," even while they forgive the man who has deliberately led a fast life.

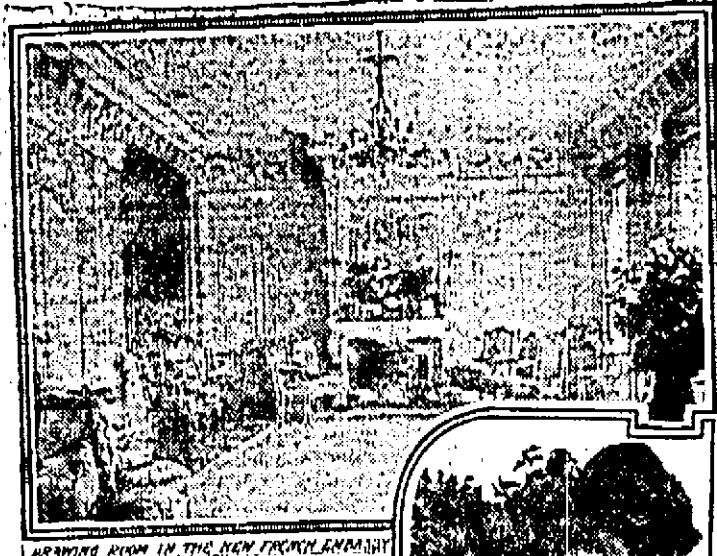

She has lost caste forever. He has merely been "sowing his wild oats." And yet it's the same sin.

Isn't it absurd? Isn't it shortsighted? For we are doing ourselves far more harm than we realize. A prominent woman physician recently made the prophecy to me that the woman of the next decade was going to begin to demand of her lover the same clean record she brings him.

I am not so hopeful of that. It seems to me the next century will be nearer the mark. The most I hope for is a gradual tendency in that direction.

But I do hope for that. And I do think the woman who is working for complete justice for her sex can do nothing better than to try to abolish this dual standard of morality, and put in its place one standard of right and wrong for both sexes, one attitude towards the same weaknesses, whether they be found in man or woman.

Learning from the new French Embassy.

Madame J. J. Jusserand and the beautiful sitting room in the new French Embassy.

Washington, D. C.—The new French embassy, with its beauty and grandeur, is far famed, but it is the ambassador and his wife rather than the embassy itself that has made it such. Ambassador Jusserand is one of France's greatest men, and his wife is looked upon in diplomatic circles as the most brilliant woman in Washington. Madame Jusserand this week sat for her picture, the first one in seven years.

A SONG OF LITTLE THINGS.

By MARY BUSSELL.

Did you ever stop to think what makes you happy? Not what excites you, but just what makes you feel contented and as if the world is a very good place after all. It isn't the great achievement that has cost you your heart's blood, it isn't the winning of the goal with the weariness and reaction, it isn't even in the success we have all obtained in the measure of happiness.

No, it is none of those things. It is just the little everyday things after all that make up every day things after all that make up the sum of what makes life worth living. The kindly word from the chance friend, the kiss with real love in it from the one we love, the smile of a child we have made happy, the word of praise for the effort we have made, whether we have achieved or not, the glow of the sunshine, the crisp feel of the winter wind, the dark charm of the twilight sky, the moonlight over the trees, all the lovely things that surround us if we but look for them, these are the things that make for joy. Why then are we so chary of the small deeds that bring the sunshine into our own lives? Why do we neglect the kindly word—the kindly letter, the smile, the friendly act which cost so little and counts so much?

It isn't because we don't want to be kind. No! It is sometimes overwork, and sometimes a feeling that we can do so little, and others with more money can do so much, that we let slip the golden opportunity to do the real good things of life.

Once I knew a young girl who had a friend that she loved. The friend met with a sad loss in her family and the girl's heart was torn with sorrow that she, with her small purse, could do so little, while others sent flowers in such profusion, but she sent the simple bunch of golden juncos from the garden so that it would reach the house after the dear friend returned from that last sad journey with her beloved, and with it the message that though the flowers were not worthy to lay among the great beauties from the hot houses, the giver hoped they would bring a message of love and cheer to the one that was left alone. These simple flowers brought more real comfort to the sorrowing heart than all the rich gifts. In one these was a message of pride, in the other there was the real heart throbs that goes deep and true.

Then let us sing the song of little things—the small deed of kindness—the gentle word spoken out of a loving heart, the kiss of true affection, and the perfumery peck so often bestowed, the smile of good cheer. These are the things, after all, that make up the joy of life.

Like the flowers that grow by the wayside—like the sunbeam that shines for all—these are the gifts that are ours to bestow. And above all let us remember that these are the gifts of our friends to us, that are worth while and let us receive them with even greater joy than the gifts that cost more in money and are not half so rich in love.

SLICING MACHINE

Fruit or Vegetables Spiced and Sliced of Knife Cuts Them.

In a small household the slicing machine invented by an Oklahoma man and described here would not make much of a hit, but where there are many mouths to feed, as in hotels and restaurants, it will be found a time-saver of considerable importance. First, there is a stand raised a few inches off the table. In the front of this stand are two rows of spikes, on which the fruit or vegetables to be sliced are stuck, and in the back is an appar-

us, consisting of a series of blades fastened together parallel to each other and operated by a handle. A blow or two from these blades will slice as many vegetables as a cook could slice in 10 minutes. It is not difficult to see how this device would save time in restaurant kitchens, besides doing the work with greater precision than it could be done by hand. The back row of spikes in this apparatus is movable with the motion of the knife blades. As the blades move the spikes shift up and down through the slots in the stand whence they protrude.

The Worst Thing.

A writer asks: "Can you imagine anything worse than the life of a book reviewer?" We sure can. There is, for instance, the life of the man who writes the book and finds it whacked fore and aft by the first mentioned person.

clip that comes over the page and holds it down. For large and unwieldy volumes these supports come in handy. Slip them on the book near the top and they will hold it at a convenient angle, while the clips prevent the pages from flying open. For ordinary reading of ordinary sized books, these devices are not necessary, but for the scholar who wants to keep but for the scholar who wants to keep his book open at one place for a long time while he consults references there out of the same time to have his hands free to make notes or experiment with some formula on these pages. By taking two strips of metal and bending them into the required shape, which anyone can figure out for himself, these book supports can be made in a few minutes.

Prize for Best Snow Statue.

A feature of the winter season in Quebec is a competition for the best snow statue to be made in Dufferin terrace, directly opposite the Chateau Frontenac. Snow, London, itself, admittance to modeling, as several successful statues made in past winter carnivals in Canada testify. It is probable that one of the three statues will be M. Paul Chevre of Paris, who is the sculptor of the Champlain statue on Dufferin terrace. M. Chevre is spending several weeks in Quebec at the chateau. The Chateau Frontenac offers a purse of $50 in gold to the sculptor of the best snow statue and two other prizes, each of $25 in gold, are offered by business firms.

Bread in Politics.

From the days of Joseph down the only well populated country which had enough grain to satisfy its own consumers was Egypt, rich beyond the record of any other soil this side of Paradise. For the history of Rome, shows the transcendent political importance of corn in all times. Feed your people, king or demagogue, also they will overthrow you. For the masses from furthest antiquity to most recent days, there has never been any torch of dissatisfaction, rebellion and anarchy like a shortage of bread.

Her Boy's Book.

A certain woman is going to keep a diary of the clever things said and done by her boy. She expects to buy a large book and jot down all the interesting events in the child's life, keep it a secret, and give it to him when he is of age. The mother is of literary turn of mind; and this book, if ever completed, will be valuable to the owner, as many pleasant little childhood incidents occur that one forgets.

Answer This Question

When thousands of women say that they have been cured of their ailments by a certain remedy, does this not prove the merit of that remedy?

Thousands of women have written the story of their suffering, and have told how they were freed from it by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—for thirty years these reports have been published all over America.

Without great merit this medicine could never have gained the largest sale of any remedy for woman's ills—never could have become known and prized in nearly every country in the world.

Can any woman let prejudice stand between her and that which will restore her health? If you believe those who have tried it you know this medicine does cure.

Read this letter from a grateful woman, then make up your mind to give Mrs. Pinkham's medicine a chance to cure you.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I am a firm believer in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was a great sufferer from organic female troubles for years, and almost despaired of ever being well again. I had bearing-down pains, headache, backache and pains in my abdomen, and tried Mrs. Pinkham's Compound as a last resort. The result was astonishing, and I have used it and advocated it ever since. It is a great boon to expectant mothers. I have often said that I should like to have its merits thrown on the sky with a search-light so that women would read and be convinced that there is a remedy for their sufferings. My husband John is in its praise. He has used it for kidney trouble and been entirely cured."—Mrs. E. A. Bishop, 1915 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

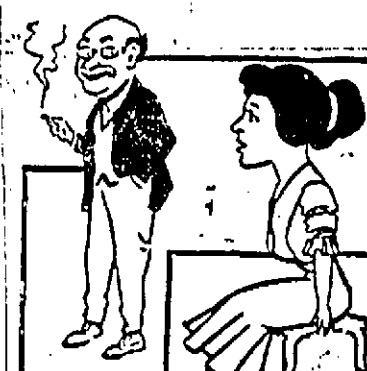

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

"Miss Dangerfield, you may call me anything you please, but I am not quite the scoundrel you think me. It's true that I was not in New Orleans, and I never saw your father in my life. I came to Raleigh on a mission that has absolutely nothing to do with Mr. Billings; he did not know I was coming. On the way here a message intended for your father came into my hands. It was thrown on the train at Kildare last night. I had gone out on the platform because the sleeper was hot, and a warning to your father to keep his hands off of Appleweight was given to me. Here it is. It seems to me that there is immediate danger in this, and I want to help you. I want to do anything I can for you. I didn't come here to pry into your family secrets, Miss Dangerfield, honestly I didn't!"

She took the piece of paper into her little hands and read it, slowly nodding her head, as if the words only confirmed some earlier knowledge of the threat they contained. Then she lifted her head, and her eyes were bright with wrath as Ardmore's wondering gaze met them.

"Did you get the jug?"

"I got two jugs, to tell the truth; but when they seemed dissatisfied and howled for me to give one back, I threw off the butter-milk."

"You threw back father's butter-milk to the man who gave you the apple-juice? Oh! oh!"

Miss Jerry Dangerfield sat down and laughed; and Ardmore, glad of an opportunity to escape, found his hat and rushed from the house.

CHAPTER V.

Mr. Ardmore Officially Recognized. "She never did it; she never, never did it!"

Mr. Ardmore, from a bench in the statehouse park, thus concluded a long reverie. It was late afternoon, and he had forgotten lunch in his absorption. There was no manner of use in recurring again to that episode of the lonely siding. He had found the girl—(Indubitably the girl—but not the wink! Miss Jerry Dangerfield was not the winking sort; he was well satisfied on that point, and so thoroughly ashamed into the bargain that he resolved to lead a different life and be very heedful of the cry of the poor in the future.

As he sat dejectedly on his park bench he was unaware that Miss Geraldine Dangerfield, walking hurriedly through the park on her way from the governor's mansion to the statehouse, passed directly behind him. His attitude was so eloquent of despair that it could not have failed to move a much harder heart than that of Miss Dangerfield, yet she made no sign; but a few minutes later the private secretary came out on the steps of the statehouse, and after a brief survey of the landscape crossed the lawn and called Ardmore by name.

"I beg your pardon, but Miss Dangerfield wished me to say that she'd

"I supposed," faltered Ardmore, "that in the absence of the governor the lieutenant governor would act. I think I read that once."

"You must have read it wrong, Mr. Ardmore. In North Carolina, in the absence of the governor, I am governor! Don't look so shocked; when I say I mean I—me! Do you understand what I said?"

"I heard what you said, Miss Dangerfield."

"I mean what I said, Mr. Ardmore. I have taken you into my confidence because I don't know you. I don't know anything about you. I don't want to know anything about you. I'd be ashamed to ask anybody I know to help me. The people of North Carolina must never know that the governor is absent during times of great public peril. And if you are afraid, Mr. Ardmore, you had better not accept the position."

"There's nothing I wouldn't do for you," blurted Ardmore.

"I'm not asking you—I would not ask you to do anything for me. I am asking you to do it for the Old North State. Our relations, Mr. Ardmore, will not be social, but purely official. Do you accept the terms?"

"I do, and I warn you now that I shall never resign."

"I have heard papa say that life is short and the tenure of office uncertain."

KING OF THROAT AND LUNG REMEDIES

SAVED HER SON'S LIFE

My son Rex was taken down a year ago with lung trouble. We doctored some months without improvement. Then I began giving Dr. King's New Discovery, and I soon noticed a change for the better. I kept this treatment up for a few weeks and now my son is perfectly well and works every day.
